PROFESSOR JAMES BRUCE BUSSEL

Professor Emeritus of Pediatrics at Weill Cornell Medical College
2012 KFP in Medicine Laureate

A leading pediatric hematologist and a specialist in thrombocytopenia. He conducted a series of pioneering studies on the treatment of infants with alloimmune thrombocytopenia (AIT), developing, evaluating and advancing trans placental medical therapy consisting of weekly intravenous administration of immunoglobulins. This approach has led to a global shift towards less invasive treatment of AIT and laid the foundations for current treatment practice.
